Premier MacDonald Loses Tilt

CALLS ELECTION OCT. 29

Parliament Is Dissolved by King George

LONDON, Oct. 9.—Prime Minister MacDonald today took his case to the country. Appearing in the house of commons, following defeat of his labor government, the prime minister announced that a general election would be held October 29.

To Prorogue Parliament

The prime minister spent the morning in conference with his political advisers and was reported to have told the labor group he was arranging to prorogue parliament this evening, after which the party's election manifesto would be issued.

"We will take this case to the people and they will sustain us," MacDonald said, referring to defeat of the government when the house adopted the liberal amendment to a vote of censure last night.

Says Fate of Europe Involved

The prime minister looked tired after last night's trying session, but his fighting jaw was set as he arose to speak, announcing the date of the general elections.

The fate of Europe, he indicated, may hang in the balance as the program of the labor government is inseparably bound to that of solution of the reparations and other post-war problems.

The king has consented to dissolution of parliament, the prime minister announced.

Fair Ticket Drive Must Get Support Or Fail, Says Pace

Only 2,500 of 4,000 Ticket Goal Reached When Every Support Is Needed, Chairman Warns

Port Arthurians are not responding to the drive of the Young Men's Business League to sell 4,000 season tickets to the Port Arthur Fair, which begins Tuesday, in the way which was expected, it was learned at a meeting of drive chairmen held at 10 o'clock this morning.

Chairman Perry Pace on calling for reports from teams found but approximately 2,500 of the allotment disposed of. It was decided to utilize the next two remaining days to the fullest in pushing forward with the sale of tickets.

"Port Arthur people should rally around and if for no other reason than financial provide themselves with season tickets. The tickets are being sold at the low figure of $1.25, because fair executives desired every body to attend. The next two days will determine whether this is appreciated or not," Chairman Pace said.

Reserve Officers Lend Aid In Campaign

TWO PROPOSITIONS

Every Natural Facility Favorable, Claim

Establishment of two government air stations at Port Arthur, and the placing of this city as the terminal of one of the air mail routes now being laid out by the postmaster general's department, was the ambitious program launched last night by the Reserve Officers' association post here.

Co-operating with the association is F. S. Owen, Port Arthur aviator, ex-army aviator, with Elgin H. Blalock, the later also a former army air service officer, were appointed a committee to confer with officials of the Eighth army corps area at San Antonio at once on the proposition.

Proposal Encouraged

Should the army officials designate Port Arthur as a government landing field it will mean the establishing of six planes here regularly with a reserve of six planes in charge all the time. Gasoline for three hours' flight a week will also be furnished the planes by the government.

Owen and Blalock will go by air to San Antonio early next week when they will keep an appointment with army officials and go into the proposition from all angles. The association has been given encouraging replies to the proposition, officials said last night, and these feel it is not improbable Port Arthur will get the field.

Similar efforts will be put forth to have Port Arthur designated as one of the stops and possibly the terminal of one of a division of the air mail routes now being mapped out.

GIRLS OFFERED DRESS PRIZES

Additional Awards Arranged For Local Exhibits

With an increase of interest of Port Arthur girls in the Girls' Division of the Port Arthur First Annual Fair, the committee in charge of the women's division has decided to add to those offered in the girls' division.

First, second and third prizes will be offered for the best made dress of cotton material, for the best made apron of cotton material and for the best made undergarment of cotton material.

Under the embroidery department of this division, first, second and third prizes will be offered to the best piece of white embroidery and to the best piece of colored embroidery. To this department have been added prizes for the best bedspread embroidered in colors, and the best bedspread embroidered in white.

Exhibits in this division are open to school girls up to 15 years of age. Mrs. Frank Timmins is chairman of the girls' division and assisting her are Mrs. E. T. Welch, Mrs. O. S. Spence, Mrs. I. H. Whelless, Miss Lily Higginbotham and Miss Dorothy Timmins.

The additional awards are being made in this division in order to stimulate further interest among the girls of Port Arthur. A great deal of needlework and sewing is being done by Port Arthur girls and it is expected that this exhibit will be unusually interesting. Mrs. Timmins urges that all girls who have made cotton dress or any sort of embroidery to enter it in the fair.

Mrs. Frank C. Harrell, chairman of the art craft division of Port Arthur's First Annual Fair, urges the exhibitors to bring their exhibits to the fair grounds either Monday or Tuesday morning before 10 o'clock.

"Many people think that we will collect their exhibits, but we want to make a public announcement regarding this fact," Mrs. Harrell said. "Only in cases where it will be impossible for the exhibitor to bring the exhibit to the fair grounds will we call for it. If the committee were to have to call for all the exhibits the work would be well nigh impossible unless our committee consisted of a score or more women."

Some 700 young ladies turned their backs on the judges, as it were, but only the spines of Florence Todd (left) survived the rigid test of X-ray machines, muscle contractions, tonicity in relation to curves, etc.

Radio Men Seek Removal Of Federal Kilowatt Restriction

Simpler Sets, Better Programs Fostered at Conference of Fans in Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Promising better programs and better reception with similar radio sets, representatives of the larger broadcasting concerns today sought endorsement of the Third National Radio conference for removal of the federal one kilowatt power restriction on broadcasting stations.

In the sessions of the special subcommittee appointed by Secretary of Commerce Hoover, to consider power limitations there was bitter strife between inventors, manufacturers and large and small broadcasters, who lined up sharply for and against the high power broadcasting system proposed by the radio corporation of America.

How power plants are more efficient, cover more territory at less cost and would provide for better programs than the small stations, those in favor of abolishing the low power restriction argue.

They are answered by the small broadcasters who charge that powerful stations bring "monopoly, create interference and would tend to cut down the variety of radio entertainment."

The department of commerce, anticipating the eventual demand for high power broadcasting units, has experimented with type of equipment and found:

The greater the transmitting power employed, the simpler the receiving set required.

Says Allenrhu Surely Conquers RHEUMATISM

Mr. James H. Allen, of 26 Forbes St., Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenrhu, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers.

"The blessed relief this marvelous prescription quickly gives has made for it thousands of friends," says Hart Drug Co., Service Drug Co., Corner Drug Co., who has been appointed agent in your city. It is Mr. Allen's own discovery. (Mail orders accepted.)—Adv.

POISON 'CORN'

Deadly Batulism Bacillus Found In Seizure

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 9.—Corn liquor seized during the past week by the sheriff's department was analyzed Wednesday by a local chemist and was found to contain deadly bacillus of botulism poisons. The germs are found in half-cooked grains and last year caused the death of scores of persons in New Orleans. Deputy Sheriff Homer French, who had the liquor analyzed, stated it was the first time any had been found here containing the poisons.

PREDICTS FALL OF OLD LINES

La Follette Confident as Race Swings On

ABOARD LA FOLLETTE SPECIAL, EN ROUTE TO DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 9.—Senator La Follette, independent candidate, headed west today, prepared to tell the people of his own country they have been impoverished by the "vest pocket tools of Wall street," representing both the old parties.

La Follette knows the west and his big drive will be against those "two great aggregations of financial power"—J. P. Morgan and the Standard Oil company.

So confident was the fiery Wisconsin senator, that he predicted today that "either the republican or the democratic party will cease to exist for the next four years."

Party Born as Revolt.

The progressive party, as he described it, was born as a revolt against the "two cynical, arrogant masters of idealism of Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln."

The bitter arraignment of the two old parties was delivered by the senator at Newark, the final stop of his eastern invasion.

Asserting that the control of the government had fallen into a few hands, La Follette challenged President Coolidge to refute the charge that "those now in control of the government at Washington do not represent the people but those who exploit the people."

La Follette was strong in denouncing war.

Agriculture was described by La Follette as having been all but "destroyed through a conspiracy of the banking agencies."

STORM DELAYS DAWES' TRAIN

Candidate Not To Touch On Oil Scandal

EN ROUTE WITH GENERAL DAWES' SPECIAL TRAIN AT CASPER, Wyo., Oct. 9.—Charles G. Dawes, republican vice presidential candidate, today entered the Teapot Dome country, reminiscent of the oil scandals of Washington.

But Dawes will have nothing to say on the subject of oil, he indicated. He is not deviating from his one line of attack on Senator La Follette, head of the independent ticket.

The special coming up from the plains of Iowa and Nebraska last night was beset by a driving rain and howling wind that made climbing to a high altitude difficult and the train was somewhat delayed.

Dawes was the first stop on the schedule today. Dawes will stay in Casper until 5 o'clock this afternoon when he leaves for Grand Island, Neb.

Coming up the 5,000-foot rise in altitude from the Missouri river valley last night, Dawes and his party listened to an old fiddler's musical program broadcasted by "Cooper roughnecks" from radio station KTNF at Shenandoah, Iowa.

TOOK GEN-LAX And gave it to the whole family

This good old grandmother, beginning to feel the infirmities of age, began to take Gen-Lax. She found it such a good medicine for herself that she gave it to the whole family—clear down to the baby. And she writes a grateful letter telling about the "health and happiness your wonderful medicine brought to me and my family."

Gen-Lax is both a laxative and a tonic combined. It relieves constipation, biliousness, sick headache, kidney disorders, etc.; and at the same time, it purifies the blood, steadies the nerves and re-vitalizes the whole system. PIMPLES CAUSE FOLKS TO SHRINK FROM ATTENTION

Whenever you go out, you can't help but pity the many folks you see trying to have a good time, but are so shrinking and backward about coming near others where pimply, blotchy and eczemic skin can be seen. You almost feel like going up to them and telling them that they ought to begin using Black and White Ointment, and Soap, which so many thousands of happy people are depending on to keep their skin clear, smooth and good to look at.

Black and White Ointment, and Soap, are selling at the phenomenal rate of more than two million packages a year, and the fact that they are so economically priced is largely responsible for this record. The 50c size Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both the Ointment and the Soap.—Adv.

THE PASSING OF SILVER.

Although silver will always have uses as a precious metal its day of adorning the table seems to be over. And for the very best of reasons: There is one to keep it clean. Hired girls are too costly to be employed by any but the most fortunate, in polishing without end, and daughters who are willing to spend the greater part of their lives burnishing silver are mostly things of the past.

All of us can remember when the silver water pitcher and soup tureen were objects of ornament for grandmothers' table.

With the decay of Victorian prosperity, says the London Times, silver may have grown thinner, but its tradition was bravely maintained for awhile. Daughters of the Trafalgar ladies liked their hairbrushes to glitter with the heads of St. Joshua's angels; their prayer books and hymn books were bound in periwinkle blue; they put up brackets between couple of Japanese fans on which the heroes of South Africa were immortalized in silver statuettes. The progress of democracy carried silver into the humblest homes, where attenuated vases, conspicuously hallmarked, gave gentility to the wallflower.

All are gone or are going. The flung tureen, which by reason of its extreme weight King James had so much difficulty in carrying, has gone with James. The vase, the statuette and the ill-fated prayer book have been sent to the dealers. Even the rose bowl, which in its rich flutings used to reflect the surrounding flush of mahogany and distort the features of our hungry ancestors, has given way to stained steel.

We are all turning to substitutes chosen of them: glass, majolica and other understudies are doing its work.

By and by we shall only see silver articles of use and adornment in the museums.

In New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Ships that sail the broad Atlantic take on $100,000,000 worth of supplies here each year. The figures are amazing.

For the round trip—between New York and Cherbourg and Southampton—the following articles are necessary to cater to a top-of-the-season crowd of 3000 passengers and crew of 1000: 75 tons of fresh meats, 10 tons of bacon and ham, 28 tons of fish and 18 tons of poultry; 6000 game birds including quail and pheasant; 300 rounds of caviar and 200 pound pate de foie gras; a ton of hot-house grapes, 600 boxes of apples, 400 boxes of oranges and several hundred boxes of pears; 5000 barrels of clams and many, many other things.

"Enough foodstuffs to fill a long train of box cars or load to the hatches any good-sized freighter" is the estimate one commissary superintendent makes for a round trip of supplies.

The finest of foods are purchased for the ships. There are purchasing agents for the larger companies who spend their entire time delving into the market for the better supplies.

After I have watched kitchen stewards stock their holds and refrigerators with supplies. A head steward examines every piece of meat and breaks two or three eggs, chosen at random, from every crate that goes aboard. Rejections are made at the slightest provocation. Only the best is taken.

Sensitiveness is the bane of many trans-Atlantic travelers, but from the amount of food consumed on the journeys it seems that few tourists ever are ill enough to miss the meal bell.

Charles Tume, a drug store owner, is charged with the theft of a nickel. Inspectors of the telephone company allege that "by trick and device" he defrauded the phone company out of five cents worth of telephoning.

DOUBLE STANDARD GETS KNOCKOUT IN DALLAS

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 9.—No longer will woman alone pay in Dallas.

The double standard of justice received a knockout here recently in corporation court when Judge F. D. Crawford issued an edict that in the future vice raiders must "find the man."

Judge Crawford, in setting a precedent for American vice control declared "that it was not right to drag a woman out of a room and bring her into court bowed in shame to face the cynical smiles of men."

Dallas police must bring the man along or the woman will be discharged, the judge declared in conclusion.

Traffic Rules Came All Too Fast For Her

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 9.—Mrs. R. H. Hicks has burned much of the midnight oil poring over the new booklet of traffic regulations recently issued by the police department.

Early the next morning as she drove downtown, a motorcycle officer swung alongside her car.

"Good morning, officer," she said as she pulled in to the curb, "which regulation have I broken now?"

"None, madam," the speed-chaser replied. "I just wanted to give you a copy of the new traffic pamphlet."

"Army protects against war just as firemen against fire," says General Lejeune. Fire and war are about the same.

ARE YOU GOING TO VOTE? THERE'S NOTHING PARTISAN IN VOTE MOVE

Danger! Peril! Whether or not the United States is to continue as a government by the majority, or decay into government by minority, will be determined by the approaching presidential election.

There is nothing partisan about the movement to "Get Out the Vote." It is quite separate from HOW they should vote. The goal is to preserve America as a government by majority rule.

Back yonder in history, it was a rare man who failed to exercise his power to ballot. About 50 years ago, a few began to neglect to vote, probably figuring that "My vote doesn't count much among so many millions."

The number who failed to vote increased steadily until in the 1920 election over 25 millions neglected to vote, compared with less than 27 millions who did vote.

If this chronic half-century tendency continues, this year the nation will pass the danger line and become a government by a minority.

Your vote can help ward that off. It can. It should. It must.

The appeal to all voters to go to the polls has such obvious arguments that it's a marvel the slacker-voters do not grasp them.

More is at stake in the 1924 election than the question of candidates. Government by majority is at stake.

In a series of editorials, The News has shown, by historical precedents, how one vote often determines the critical actions of legislative bodies, and how a few thousand individual votes by citizens can sway an entire national election. In a deadlock, one vote has the power of thousands of votes in elections where candidates run far apart.

Three major parties are in the field this year. There is almost unlimited choice for the voter. For once, he has no ground for the shallow excuse that no candidate exists representing his ideas.

LINCOLN NOT AWKWARD

Abraham Lincoln was not awkward. His tailor made him look that way. Former U. S. Senator Cornelius Cole, 102 years old, recently wrote:

"In justice to my friend, Abraham Lincoln, I want to correct the propaganda which has been going the rounds about his awkwardness. I was a member of the thirty-eighth congress when he was president, and sat within arm's length of him when he delivered his Gettysburg address. I knew him well enough to deny that he was awkward.

"Tall, yes, and because of that he appeared a bit ungainly. But he seemed awkward, it was because of his clothes. There were terrible tailors in those days."

Awkward tailoring did not do Lincoln any harm with the voters of his time. His tailor gave him a lot in common with the roughly garbed people back yonder.

Look through an old picture album. The old-timers, in their "Sunday best," wore wonderful cloth—material that would be pried sky-high nowadays. But the tailoring was awkward—to our eyes. Of course, we'll look just as crude when people a half century from now inspect pictures of us.

Peg-top trousers, the height of fashion not so many years ago, would be hooted at as ridiculous now.

Clothes may not make the man. But it's just as well for Lincoln that his tailor didn't transform him into a graceful dude. His ungainly appearance was a tremendous political asset.

Good taste in clothes seems to be inborn, not acquired. There are some people who look stylish and snappy in any kind of garments. Others look awkward and slouchy, no matter what they wear.

If you study a man's clothes, you can come pretty close to "getting his number." Clothes do not make the man, but they do reveal the man.

Insistive realization of this is what makes men dress so much alike. They submerge many a defect by not venturing far from the standardized average.

Women are different. They seek individuality, strikingness.

CLIMATE

The arctic regions used to have a warm, mild climate. Fossils proving this were brought back by Explorer MacMillan.

When the weather experts claim the climate doesn't change, they really mean that it changes so extremely slowly that it takes thousands of years to observe any difference.

The change seems to be taking place faster of late years. Many parts of central and northern Canada report that "queer winters" have nearly exterminated field mice and squirrels.

Quillen's Paragraphs

America now holds all the records except for modesty.

New world slogan: "Get Helme out of the hole by Christmas."

If Europe really feels the need of being saved, there is always Mr. Darrow.

A candidate should pet minorities; he needs them to help make his majority.

Mr. Coolidge looks a little stouter, but it may be just the language held in.

A jewelry man to quit this vale of strife is to carry a black bag and resemble another salesman.

Why shouldn't kings renounce a throne? Fine journalists sometimes run for office.

A true conservative is one who wonders what business the west has butting into politics.

With all their eagerness to save the farmer, the candidates did very little about early frosts.

The astral western had man returned and saw Herrin. Gosh, I thought I was tough!" said he.

Dempsey may lick Wills easily, but it might be well to take a few lessons in wrestling.

France shouldn't hesitate to guarantee the German loan; she guaranteed her own at little cost.

Man can learn almost everything except to look dignified while carrying bundles of dry goods.

This year every voter has an opportunity to express himself, no matter what he is mad about.

A public servant is unlike a private servant, except that he has the same superiority complex.

There is a great opportunity for a rain maker in China. They stop fighting when it rains over there.

There are compensations. If you are too unimportant to afford good clothes, nobody notices your clothes.

"What kind of a cow is it? Is she good enough to mingle with my best select cows on my farm?" queried Mr. Schwab.

"I don't know," replied the prospective seller.

"Well, has she a pedigree?" inquired the steel man, seeking definite information.

"I can't even tell you that," answered the man with the cow.

"Well, does she give milk?" inquired Mr. Schwab in desperation.

"Good, I can't even answer that," replied the cow's owner. "But I'll tell you one thing, she's a good natured cow and if she has any milk she'll give it to you."

GETS LARGE DOWRY, BUT KEEPS WORKING

PAIGNS, Texas, Oct. 9.—Although he received a check for $22,000 as a part of his father's estate, Sterling Levis, Santa Fe employee here, says he will continue to work at his present job here for 10 years.

Levis's check represented oil revenues from Oklahoma holdings and additional funds will be coming his way with settlement of the estate of his mother, who died recently. Levis says he will continue in his present employment as "extra man."

The Orchid of Sleep

"My God," cried Innes, "there is proof that the chief was right!"

Wessex nodded in silent agreement. On the table lay the report of Merton, the analyst, concerning the stains upon the serviette which Harley had sent from the house of the late Sir Charles Abington. Briefly, it stated that the serviette had been sprinkled with some essential oil, the exact character of which Merton had found himself unable to determine, its perfume, if it ever possessed any, having disappeared. And the minute quantity obtainable from the linen tendered ordinary tests difficult to apply. The analyst's report, however, concluded as follows:

"Mr. Harley, having foreseen these difficulties, and having apparently suspected that the oil was of Oriental origin, recommended me, in the note which he enclosed with the serviette, to confer with Dr. Warwick Grey, I send a copy of a highly interesting letter which I have received from Doctor Grey, whose knowledge of eastern poisons is unparalleled, and to whose opinion I attach immense importance."

It was the contents of this appendix that had inspired Innes' remarks. Indeed, it contained matter which triumphantly established Paul Harley's theory that Sir Charles Abington had not died from natural causes. The letter was as follows:

No. — Harley Street, London, W. I.

My Dear Merton:

I am indebted to you and to Mr. Harley for an opportunity of examining the serviette, which I return herewith. I agree that the oil does not respond to ordinary tests, nor is any smell perceptible. But you have noticed in your microscopic examination of the stains that there is a peculiar crystalline formation upon the surface. You state that this is quite unfamiliar to you, which is not at all strange, since outside of the Himalayan district of Northwest India I have never met with it myself.

Respecting the character of the oil employed, however, I am in no doubt, and I actually possess a dried specimen of the flower from which it is expressed. This is poetically known among the Mangars, one of the fighting tribes of Nepal, as the Bloom of Orchid of Sleep.

It is found upon the lower Himalayan slopes, and bears a close resemblance to the white odontoglossum of commerce, except that the flower is much smaller. Its perfume attracts insects and sometimes small animals and reptiles, although inhalation seems to induce instant death. It may be detected in its natural state by the presence of hundreds of dead flies and insects upon the ground surrounding the plant. It is especially fatal to nocturnal insects, its perfume being stronger at night.

Preparation of the oil is an art peculiar to members of an obscure sect established in that district, by whom it is said to be employed for the removal of enemies.

An article is sprinkled with it, and whilst the perfume, which is reported to resemble that of cloves, remains perceptible, to inhale it results in immediate syncope, although by what psychological process I have never been enabled to determine.

With the one exception which I have mentioned, during my stay in Nepal and the surrounding districts I failed to obtain a specimen of this orchid. I have twice seen the curious purple stain upon articles of clothing worn by natives who had died

Your Money AT WORK

By MAXSON FOXALL JUDELL

Failure to take sensible precaution in writing checks cause men and business huge money losses every year.

The next time you receive a check or make out one, see whether it is made out in such a way that it will give a check raiser the maximum of trouble in an effort to raise it.

In making out your checks, use one of the various "safety papers," if possible. This will reduce the probability of loss through forging and check raising, but it is not infallible.

In making out any sort of check, write in the name of the payee flush with the words, "pay to the order of," or at least at the beginning of the line, if "pay to the order of" is on a line by itself.

Where the amount is written out, write the amount flush with the left side of the line and draw a line completely out to the word "dollars." Where the amount is put in after the conventional dollar sign, make the figures flush with the dollar sign, thus: $23.45, not $ 23.45; as the latter case would give a check raiser an easy chance to make the check $923.45.

FIRE TONGUE

By SAX ROHMER Copyright, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Sir Charles Abington engages Paul Harley, criminal investigator, to solve the mystery of a constant surveillance of Sir Charles. While Harley is dining at the Abington home Sir Charles falls from his chair in a dying condition. Dr. McMurdoch pronounces death due to heart-failure. Harley insists that Sir Charles was poisoned. The last words uttered by Abington are, "Nicol Brinn" and "Fire-Tongue." Harley asks Brinn to explain the meaning of "Fire-Tongue." Brinn refuses to divulge the secret. Ormuz Khan, Oriental, a friend of Phil Abington, daughter of Sir Charles. While Harley is shadowing the home of Ormuz Khan he is discovered by the Oriental and imprisoned in the house.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

At noon the voice again addressed him from behind the gilded screen: "Mr. Paul Harley?"

"Yes?"

"Your last opportunity has come. For your own future or for that of the world you seem to care little or nothing. Are you still determined to oppose our wishes?"

"I am."

"You have yet an hour. Your final decision will be demanded of you at the end of that time."

Faint sounds of withdrawal followed these words.

He began to pace the room nervously, listening for he knew not what. His mind was filled with vague imaginings, when at last came an overture to the grim test to be imposed upon him.

A slight metallic sound drew his glance in the direction of the gilded screen. A sliding door of thick plate glass had been closed behind it, filling the space between the metal work and the curtain. Then—the light in the brass lantern became extinguished.

Standing rigidly, fists clenched, Paul Harley watched the curtain. And as he watched, slowly it was drawn aside. He found himself looking into a long room which appeared to be practically unfurnished.

The floor was spread with rugs and at the farther end folding doors had been opened, so that he could see into the second room, most elegantly appointed in Persian fashion.

Seated in a carved chair over which a leopard skin had been thrown, and talking earnestly to some invisible companion, whose conversation seemed wholly to enthrall her, was Phil Abington!

Gladly Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Louisville, Nebraska.—"I was married twelve years before my boy was born. I had a lot of female troubles and had been treated by a physician for them but they continued much the same. Then I read your advertisement in the newspapers and thought I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a good trial, for if it had helped others, why not me? I have taken 36 bottles of the medicine and am never without it in the house. My baby boy is three years old now and I sure am happy since I got relief from my troubles. When any one has troubles like mine, or any ways like mine, I am always glad to recommend the Vegetable Compound so that they will get the right kind of medicine."—Mrs. JOE NOVAK, Box 662, Louisville, Neb.

Mrs. E. S. Dixon Entertains At Lovely Bridge

A charmingly appointed affair of the week was Mrs. E. S. Dixon's entertainment of the Swastika Bridge club Tuesday afternoon at her home, 3025 Seventh street.

In recognition of the approaching Halloween season, Mrs. Dixon used the Halloween motif with artistic effect in the adornment of the home. The black and orange colors of Halloween were reflected in the black witches, pumpkins and jack-o-lanterns which filled wall spaces and vantage points about the rooms given over to the hospitality.

Bridge table appointments featured the chosen theme in a charming manner, and as favors the hostess presented each guest with a cunning cat-head filled with candies. Three tables of players enjoyed the games, during which the hostess served an iced drink. For success Mrs. J. J. Worm was awarded a handsome favor and Mr. Roy Houston got consolation. The booty fell to Mrs. L. D. Titus. A lovely salad course was offered at the close of the games, and later in the afternoon punch was served.

The personnel of the pleasing affair included Mrs. L. D. Titus, Mrs. B. E. Lashly, Mrs. R. W. Tucker, Mrs. Barney Smith, Mrs. R. T. Hebert, Mrs. E. G. Betzel, Mrs. Roy Houston, Mrs. J. J. Eunice Chardin Becomes Bride Of T. B. Parker

A wedding around which centers the affectionate interest of a host of friends took place Tuesday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. August Nelson, when Miss Eunice Chardin became the attractive bride of Mr. T. B. Parker, with the impressive service read by Rev. T. Alvis Davis of the Presbyterian church.

Lovely coral vine, chrysanthemums and fern were used in charming combination to provide the setting for the wedding. The ceremony took place in the living room before an improvised altar of ferns and chrysanthemums woven through with tracery of coral vine.

Preceding the ceremony, E. H. McGuire gave a pleasing program of musical music, the strains modulating to Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal party entered.

The bride entered with her maid of honor, Miss Emma Nelson, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, A. R. McLeod. The bride wore a modish traveling suit of gray with smart hat and accessories in harmony, her beautiful corsage of white roses and lilies of the valley giving a distinct bridal touch to her costume.

Miss Nelson was attired in a handsome frock of brown crepe satin.

A reception followed the ceremony, the wedding collation being served in the dining room, where a rose and white scheme was attractively featured. Coral vine and roses graced vantage points about the room and were used to give floral charm to the table which was centered with the lovely wedding cake resting on a bed of lace fern and rosebuds. The cake was a handsome confection, topped with a miniature bride and groom. An ice course and punch were served with the wedding cake, with Misses Linnie Hamilton and Pearl McGee presiding at the prettily decorated punch table.

The wedding was attended by more than thirty guests. Both Mr. and Mrs. Parker are well known in this city, having lived here a number of years. Mrs. Parker was reared and educated here and has a wide circle of friends in Port Arthur who are deeply interested in her marriage. Mr. Parker is an employee of the Texas Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker left during the evening for a wedding tour of points in Mississippi and Alabama. They will return to Port Arthur after October 20 to make their home.

I put him up on the bed beside Leslie and what do you think that blessed child said, Sydney?

As if an uncanny intuition had come to him from out of the Cosmos, he put his arms up and laid them on her soft breast, and with never a quiver of the brave little mouth he said: "Zackie going to 'try with you' always. I yuve you best of all! Muvver rove Zackie best of all!" His moist lips were held to hers and with a sigh of satisfaction he snuggled close.

Then the malign witches that stir the cauldron, seeing that we were too happy, tinkled a little telephone at the side of the bed. Naturally, I picked it up, heard the voice of Karl Whitney and saw red. I immediately said: "Mrs. Prescott is too ill to talk to anyone." That would have satisfied the man at the other end, but I ought to have known it would not satisfy Leslie. She asked me who it was, and when I did not answer, she snatched the telephone from me and said: "Tell me what you want to know."

"I won't have you talking to that fellow!"

Then to some question he asked, she said: "Yes, dear."

She called him dear, Syd!

The next thing she said was: "It was very splendid letter—very brave, very self-sacrificing. I haven't had time to show it to Jack, but I'm going to."

Again the malign fates stirred the cauldron, and I blurted out: "You'll have to show it very soon, for I'm going home on tonight's train."

Leslie said: "Goodby, I'll answer your letter tomorrow."

"I'll say you won't," was my ugly remark; then my wife showed equal temper to mine.

"I'll say I will. I'm tired of your sudden temper, John. I'm going to be a free-born white woman from now on. I've made all concessions possible. Either you let me explain and you accept my explanation at its face value, or we would better agree to disagree."

"I'd better say goodby, then," I said. At that moment Mother Hamilton came to the door.

"Jack, your father wants to see you," and I strode away.

The whole thing was on again. As I stumbled into Mr. Hamilton's room I said to myself that I would take the first train back to Albany.

Again the fates seemed to conspire against me, and it looks now as though I would soon be moving to Pittsburg. I do not think, Syd, that Father Hamilton will ever again get up from his bed. Before I left the room he told me that he doesn't expect to get well, and you know when as brave a man as he says he has given up, he has practically lost the fight.

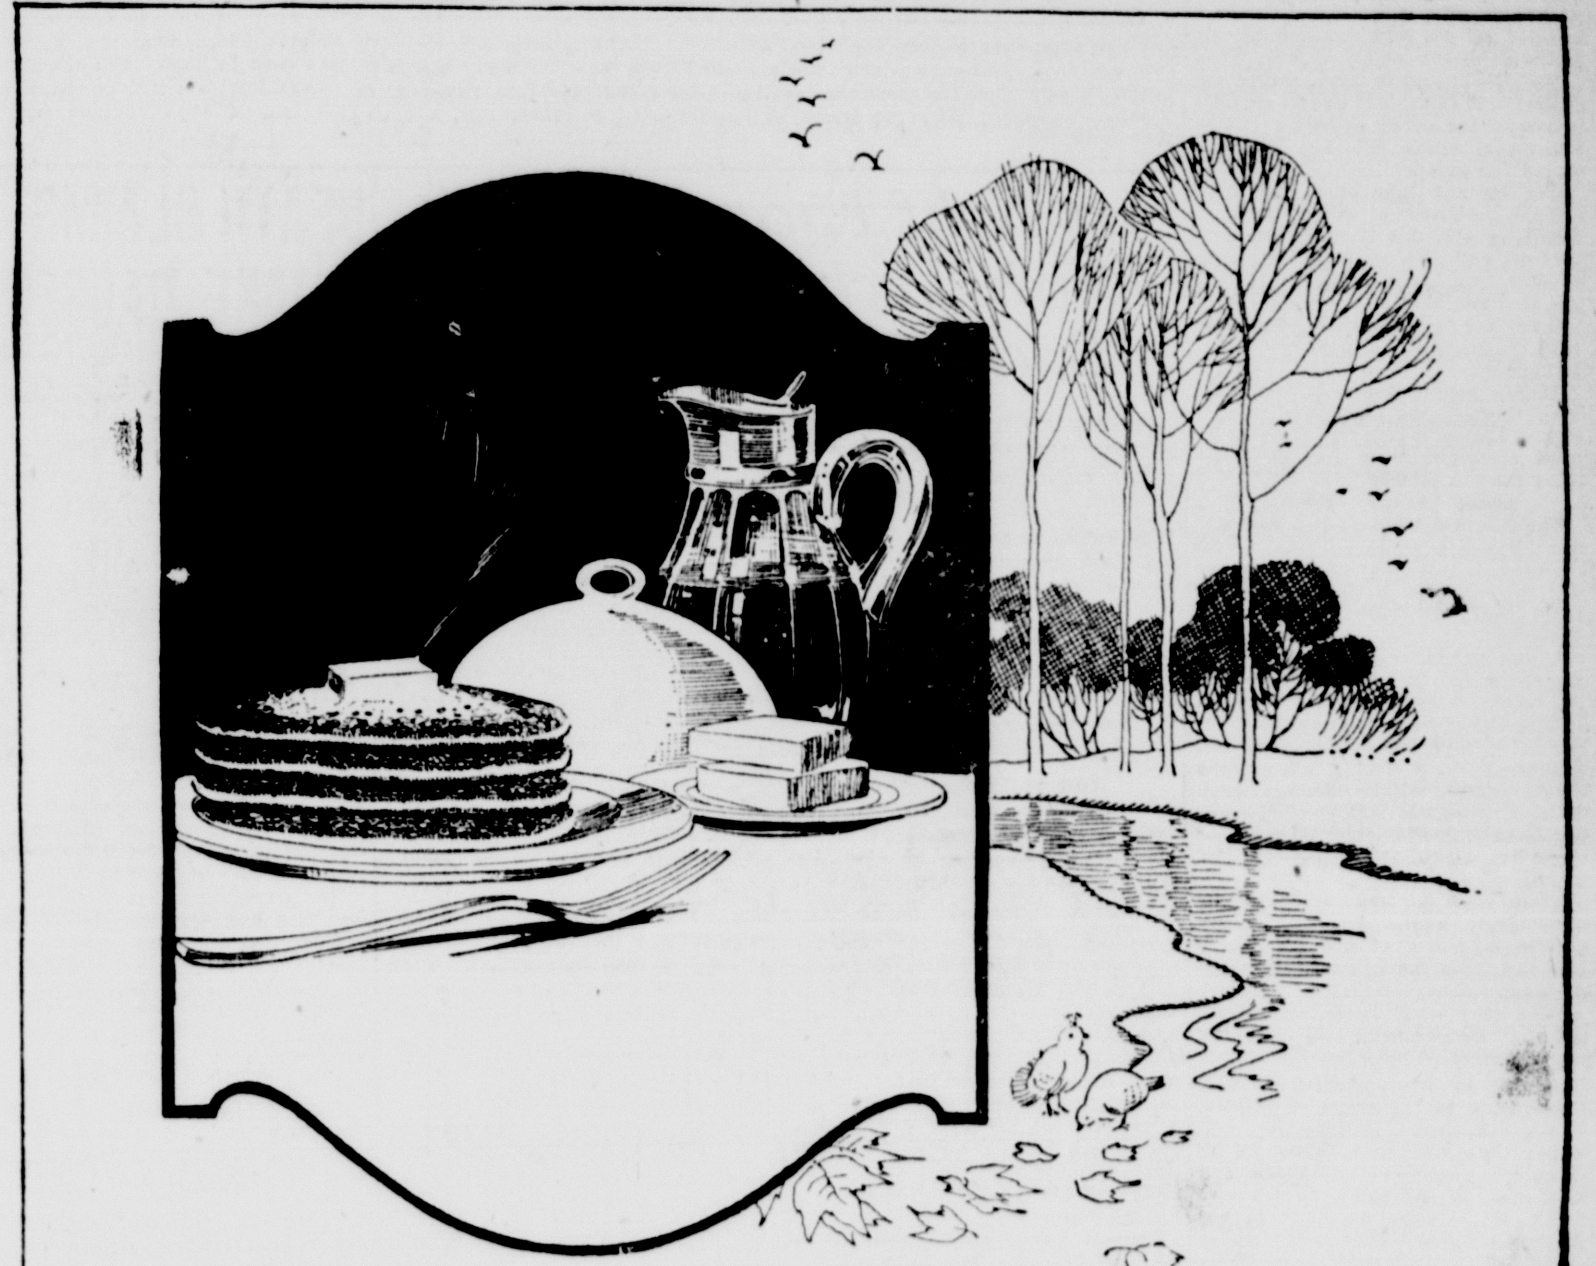

I was greatly shocked when I saw him, and was not able to keep all of my concern out of my face. He could hardly hold out a trembling hand to me, and spoke in a very weak voice as though to confirm what he saw in my face.

"Yes, my boy, I have come to the end of the way. Except for my dear wife's sake, I think I will be perfectly content to go, for I am inexhaustibly tired, and a long sleep comes with an appealing gesture toward me."

Even that short speech was almost more than he could manage. Abruptly, however, he gathered strength.

"My boy," he said, "you must take over the business and carry on after I am gone." (Copyright, 1924, NEA Service, Inc.)

Tomorrow: The letter continued.

Hot Cakes and Syrup and Morning Glory

Outside it's October. Your breakfast appetite is sharpened. To satisfy it there's hot cakes and syrup and Morning Glory.

Without the flavor of good butter the other two would not be anywhere near so delicious. Good butter adds goodness to most things you eat. It makes them taste better.

Morning Glory flavor is the result of care in cream selection, in pasteurization, in churning, packing and distribution.

It costs no more but adds greatly to the enjoyment of your meals.

Have you tried a pound lately?

'Sir'alter's' Great Career Climaxed By Tragedy

HEART'S VICTORY WON BY HARRIS

Refuses to Jerk His Old Friend 'Barney'

By FRANK GETTY
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.— Walter Johnson probably is through with big league baseball.

The passing of one of the game's greatest pitchers and the best-loved sportsman was marked by a tragedy—and a gesture by a kid manager so heroic that it robbed the tragedy of its sting.

The tragedy was the story of the climax of Johnson's career, how the dream of 18 years came true at the Polo Grounds yesterday and found his arm gone, so that Giant hits rang to all corners of the field and the great pitcher was all but battered from the box.

Harris "Plays the Game."

That he was not battered from the box was due to the magnificent courage of Bucky Harris, who once was a breaker boy in a Pennsylvania coal mine and now manages the American league champions.

Harris, as should everyone else, knew Johnson was not "right" when the Giant batters began to connect squarely with his offerings. The boy was not on the fast one and the once dreaded curves were breaking slowly and wide of the mark.

But Bucky, white-faced, seeing the crucial ball game that almost certainly meant the series dribbling out of his reach, stuck out his jaw and played the game.

Not for the sake of a ball game and the thousands of dollars involved, would he send his friend, "Barney,"
as they call Walter in Washington, on that long tramp across the field to the showers, that weary walk that a pitcher has to take alone—too often with the boots of a thoughtless throwing in his ears.

Harris kept Johnson in the game, even through the nightmare of that eighth inning when the Giants, almost pitchingly, were hitting everything the big pitcher had.

Evans "Crawls" Rooter.

The Washington manager will win many a ball game in the future with his head, but it is probable he never will win as great a victory with his heart again as was that defeat of yesterday.

In the stands, as Johnson faded and the old speed just wasn't there and the Giants who had all but expected to lose the game, set up some of the easiest pitching they had faced and hammered out a 6 to 2 victory, the crowd pulled silently for Johnson.
To many, each hit off the big game blonde pitcher who never lost heart or nerve, when he had nothing else, was a personal matter.

When some fan screamed "take him out," Billy Evans, American league umpire was one of his grandstand out and upon the fellow like a thun-derclod.

"Cut that out," he shouted above the din, "Come outside and I'll knock your head off."

Several of the fan's friends rose blusteringly to his rescue and Billy, who has a chest like a barrel, challenged them all. They were not to shout down Johnson, he insisted, and they subsided and didn't.

"Since I started umpiring in the American league," Billy said, "I have killed 500 bad boys on Barney. Never once did he complain."

"He was the greatest fellow in baseball, with a big heart, and the greatest fast ball, when he was right."

There were thousands like Evans among the fans of stand and bleachers who would have given much to see Johnson win. But the way he was pitching yesterday, he couldn't.

It was a day for youth, not for age that was past its prime. Young Lindstrom, the 18-year-old kid who played third base for the Giants since Heinrich Groh hurt his ankle, was the hero—of Johnson's last day. He was born the year Johnson started to pitch for Washington.

Johnson Out to Coast.

Walter Johnson probably will announce his retirement from the big league and buy an interest in a club in the Pacific Coast league, where he can settle down. At 37 he is through with fast time. Whether he burned out the remnants of a once invincible pitching arm helping Bucky Harris win the pennant this year, or whether 18 years is all a pitcher can serve, no one knows.

But long after the outcome of the present series is forgotten, fans—and that goes for the millions who didn't see it—will remember how Bucky Harris kept Walter Johnson in the box through that chilly October afternoon and saw a crucial ball game go rather than humiliate one of the game's greatest figures and send him on that long, lonely shuffling walk across the green field to the showers.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me.
Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter.
There was no operation, no loss of time,
no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 2541, Marcellus Avenue, Manassas, Va. Better cut out this notice and show it to any other doctor who is rap-tured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.—Adv.

No, Not The Bulgarian Army, But Washington's Pennant Winners Back in 1885

Washington once idolized these men as it does "Buck" Harris and his boys today. They, too, won a pennant for it—the capital's first, and only one until the Senators came home from Boston the other day. But that was back in 1885 when the great national pastime was still in its infancy. They called the team the "National Base Ball Club" in those days. From left to right, in the front row are: Hoover, c.; Gladman, 3b.; Scanlon, manager; Barr, p.; Burch, 1b.; and O'Day, p. Back row, left to right, are: Cook, c.; Palmer, c.; Powell, rf.; Baker, 1b.; Knowles, 2b, and White, ss.

Art Nehf Faces Zachary With 'Peck' at Shortstop Back at Capitol Today

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Pushed clear to the end of the plank where another shove will mean down, the Washington Senators were back home today for the sixth game of the world's series with the New York Giants.

Down to three games to two and Walter Johnson gone as a possibility, in the two games that are necessary to win the championship, the American league champions had little more than a game fighting heart to sustain their lips.

Giants 2-1 Favorites
When the old master, Sir Walter, went down yesterday for the second time, he carried with him the last ordinary chance the Senators had to become the first world's champions.
Washington ever had and they became the underdog in the fight for the series.

With the Giants needing only one more victory to clinch the title and with Art Nehf, the star southpaw, ready to work, the Giants became a two to one favorite in the betting to win the series. There was not much betting, however. There were not enough New Yorkers in town to flood the market with coin and no rooter in Washington would bet against the team.

Despite the gloomy outlook there was no pain on the faces of the homefolks to remind the Senators on their arrival last night that things had not gone so well for them in New York. There was the same pep and enthusiasm among the fans and they couldn't see that their Senators were at the point of death.

Washington believed that with Peckinpaugh back in the game and with Big Tom Zachary ready to stand the Giants on their heads, the Senators were sure winners, that the series was squared again and that the American league champions would win the rubber game tomorrow.

50,000 Great Senators Ideal weather greeted the mob that arrived in town this morning on a flock of special trains. Washington thought it was a cool day but the fans who sat through the chill at the Polo Grounds yesterday thought that it was real southern weather.
The skies were clear and sunshine flooded the city and chased away all danger of rain.

The two teams arrived last night on special trains as soon as the players arrived from the Polo Grounds.
The Senators were given a big demonstration by a crowd of 50,000. Walter Johnson was the hero and received the biggest cheering despite the fact that he had failed to live up to the big hope of Washington that he could win three games and clinch
the series.

Buck Harris, the young manager of the Senators, said that Tom Zachary probably would pitch today. He has curly Ziegler available but he learned toward Ziegler because of his experience. Against Johnson and Marberry the Giants looked like fast ball murderers but they didn't do so well against the slow twisters of Zachary and Mogridge.

Roger Peckinpaugh, the star shortstop who has been out of two games with a bad leg, will also start today, Harris said. Peck was the big work-horse of the defense and the most dangerous hitter on the team and the team was certain to be better with Bluge at third and Peck at short.

Miller, who had to be sent to third base when Bluge was moved over to Peck's position, has worn a crown of thorns all during the series. He is not a good third baseman, nor even a fair one. He couldn't make the grade with the lowly Philadelphia Phillies, and all of a sudden he finds himself at third base in a world's series. All the tough plays in two vital important games went to him and every time he went to the bat he was in a pinch. He is the outstanding goat of any world's series.

The loose pitching of Walter Johnson and the inability of the Senators to hit with runners on the bases enabled the Giants to win yesterday's game and get their big advantage.

NAVY NEEDS BACKFIELD
Coach Bob Felsell of the Navy, while well supplied with powerful linemen, has the job of developing an almost entire new backfield. That should keep him busy until the clash with West Point.

MACK WILL STAND PAT
Connie Mack says he intends to stand pat with his Athletic lineup, which played as good ball as any team in the American league during the last two months of play.

ALSO BASKETBALL STAR
Frank Riccardi, star infielder of the Philadelphia Athletics, is one of the best basketball players in the country, rated among the first five.

DEATH CLAIMS JAKE DAUBERT

Unable to Rally After Operation

JAKE DAUBERT

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 9.—
Jake Daubert, captain of the Cincinnati Reds and veteran first baseman, died in a hospital here today at 4
a. m.

Daubert underwent an operation for appendicitis and drainage of the gall bladder last week. Yesterday his condition became critical and physicians held out little hope for his recovery.

Acute indigestion, resulting in a diabetic stomach, was the immediate cause of his death. His run-down condition, aggravated by stomach trouble, made it impossible for Daubert to rally from the shock of the operation.

Jake's full name was Jacob Ellis-worth Daubert. He was 49 years old and his home was in Schuylkill Haven, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Daubert and their 19-year-old son, George, were at Daubert's side when he died. A daughter, Mrs.
Samuel Decker and Jake's older brother, George Daubert, arrived from Pennsylvania several hours too late to be with the veteran before he died.

TRICK OF FATE FAVORS HARRIS

Telegram for His Brother
Gave Him Start

BY BILLY EVANS

Fate has shaped much of the career of Stanley Harris, youthful manager of Washington's first pennant winner.

A prank of fate gave him his start.
Ever since fate has watched over him,
always in a most favorable manner.

Nine years ago Stanley Harris was playing second base for the Pittston, Pa., team. Today he is the most talked-about figure in baseball.

The story goes that Frank Brower of the Cleveland Indians gave Harris his start. Incidentally it was a brother of Stanley's that Brower had in mind.

Back in 1918 Brower was playing first base for Reading, Pa., in the International league. The club needed a second baseman badly.

Brower informed the club manager that he had played with a fellow by the name of Harris in the south and he looked like a good man. It so happened that Brower did not remember the first name of the said Mr. Harris. The Reading club decided to take a chance and sent the following wire:

"HARRIS, BASEBALL PLAYER,
PITTSBURGH, PA.
"CAN YOU REPORT AT ONCE?
NEED SECOND BASEMAN BAD-LY."

Now it happens the telegram was meant for Merle Harris, who at the time was playing in the west. The wire was received by his brother, Stanley.

Stanley Made Good.
Harris took the first train for Reading. Imagine Brower's surprise when the wrong Mr. Harris reported!

In his first game Harris fielded perfectly and in four trips to the plate he made a single, two doubles and scored the winning run.

Later Harris was traded to the Buffalo club of the same league. The Washington club was tipped off that he was a good prospect. Griffith scouts reported unfavorably.

Not satisfied Griffith looked Harris over himself. The owner of the Nationals liked his style. After the game he learned that for several weeks Harris had been playing with a broken finger.

Tough Tony Benardi Victim of 'Knockout' By Paul Jones for Third Fall On Elks Mat

TRANGER LIVES UP TO HIS 'REP'

Uses Everything But His Teeth On Jones

Foursomes Picked for Membership Golf Match at Country Club Sunday

Uses Everything But His Teeth On Jones

Paul Jones, the phenomenal, gathered for himself last night all the glory there was to spread around, and made himself a rep that is likely to stand for some time in the annals of local sport history.

With pure nerve and the breaks of the match all on his side, Julius Sigel's pet toppled "The Gas House Wop" with a mighty thud for the final fall of a three-turn scrap in Elks arena Wednesday, and clinched another battle to add to his unbroken string in Port Arthur.

Some say Jones' knee was responsible for the fall, and others claim his shoulder knocked Tony Benardi to the Land of Nod. Anyway, with things going all his own way, Benardi leaped high after the sturdy Jones, and Houston's pride—as he has done several times before in the same arena—leaped with "The Wop." When they came down, Benardi's head, back and shoulders crashed against the hard floor of Elks theatre stage, with Jones' full weight of 150 pounds, and Tony was out.

Tony Interrupts Sigel
Convulsions seized the Italian boy as he lay unconscious on the floor. Fans who had hissed and jeered him gathered around, each eager to revive him each regretting that the match—perhaps the toughest, roughest mill that Port Arthur has witnessed—had ended.

A crowded theatre greeted the two grapplers as they appeared in their respective corners, and Tony let it be known early in the game that he was tough in every sense of the word when he interrupted Sigel's announcement that "I had this match scheduled for Houston, but gave it to Mr. Wallace when Houston wouldn't let me sing it over there." Tony's interruption brought forth the statement from "The Dop" that "When I wrestle, I don't want any long-winded ballyhoos to introduce me—just want me as soon as he can."

A flashlight picture was snapped as the two husky men shook hands in mid-arena, then Referee Bryan separated them, and the mill started, each man plunging into the business of wrestling without much hesitancy or sparring for holds.

Tony was tough from the start, and used everything from pulling hair to clawing, scratching and kicking. About the only thing that Tony didn't use, as several fans expressed it, was his teeth, and had they been on the outside where he might have rubbed them up and down Jones' back as he did a two-days' growth of stubby, wiry beard, Tony might have resorted to his teeth to aid in his punishment of Jones.

"Houston Split" Wins
Throughout the first fall, Benardi's brawny hands, which he rubbed vigorously over Jones' face, and his palms, which he used frequently to "heel" his opponent, were in play. With Jones tied almost helplessly in a human knot, his arms pinned to the point of uselessness, Benardi seemed to take an almost brutal delight in "smashing" the Houston boy at random all over the body.

Rushes to the ringside were frequent, and both wrestlers were crashed without mercy into the tiers of heavy boards about the arena.

The dial of the timekeeper's clock had ticked off exactly 43 minutes before the first fall came. Then Jones, who had been on the defensive more than Benardi claimed a down over Benardi with the Houston split, Benardi was aching from the pain of the fall for several minutes in his dressing room, but announced to the admirers who gathered around him that he was coming back.

He did. And Jones got some of the fastest milling for the next 12 minutes he has had here, Benardi taking just that long to force the Houston boy to pat the mat in agony, while "The Wop" was applying with gusto the head scissor-hammerlock combination which he had tried for earlier in the melee.

"Knockout" Wins Fall
With a fall each to their credit, the two grapplers didn't disappoint their fans when they came on for the final turn; both fought to the delight of their admirers, and Jones was just as willing to butt, push, lunge, claw and kick as was "The Wop." Twenty-eight minutes ticked off while the two boys were undergoing their own endurance contest in that last fall, and Benardi had things coming his way when the unexpected happened. He lunged just once too often, and Jones put the same trick to work that has pulled him out of several holes in Port Arthur—when it was all over for Tony. However, the "knockout" was clean.

POWERFUL THEME
"The Queen of Sin," which commenced its four days' run at the Cameo theatre yesterday, consists of a blending of modern drama and ancient spectacle, holds the attention from the moment the first scene is flashed on the screen, and while the story depicts the dire results of wilful wickedness, it never becomes tiresome or preachy.

The settings, lighting and photography are said to be superb, especially in the episodes which show the luxuries of the Queen of Sin and the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah.

"NELLIE, THE BEAUTIFUL CLOAK MODEL"

"Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model," received its local premiere at the Peoples theatre last night. Claire Windsor is excellent as "Nellie." She has never appeared more beautiful than when arrayed in the gorgeous creations which she wears in this picture.

The story is a melodrama. Nellie is kidnapped from her home. She is forced to work and save for her sick father, who in reality is an old suitor of her mother's. When she reaches womanhood she has to seek work in a modiste shop. Her troubles multiply rapidly, providing plenty of excitement for any screen audience. Overture, "Georgia Lullaby," sung by Roger William Archer. Matinee Welschhoff at the organ.

"BRIGHT LIGHTS OF BROADWAY"

If you enjoy a thrill grab your hat and make a bee line for the "Bright Lights of Broadway," now being shown at the Strand, and will continue for two days more.

"Bright Lights of Broadway" tells the story of Irene Marley, a young girl born and raised in a little country town in the upper part of New York state. At the opening of the story she is cherishing two dreams—one of a stage career, and the other of love and a home. When the famous New York theatrical manager, Randall Sherill, played by Mr. Sherman, chances to pass the little country church and hear her singing, he marvels at her beautiful voice; and when he sees the singer he knows that he has made "a find." He promptly offers Irene the chance for which she has always longed and she accepts. Thus, as time passes, one of her dreams comes true—and the other is forgotten.

Present politicians don't need airplanes. They go up in the air very easily without them.

Losers Treat Winners to Hotel Dinner

FACTS ABOUT MATCH
First golf and country club match of year.
Play will start promptly at 12:30.

Sunday, Oct. 12 (next Sunday) instead of Oct. 19.

Losers to treat winners of match to banquet at Plaza hotel Thursday Oct. 16 at 6:30.

All foursomes arranged as nearly equal as possible.

V. B. Peveto selected as official starter and scorer for match.

Port Arthur's first membership golf match of the season will be staged Sunday at 12:30 at the Golf and Country club.

Captains Sheeks and Day went over the membership list yesterday and selected the players and foursomes from the club roster.

It was first intended to play the match on the following Sunday, October 19, but many of the players argued for the match next Sunday and it was decided to hold it at that time.

In order for the match to run off smoothly every player listed below is urgently requested to be on hand at the golf grounds next Sunday promptly at 12:30, for at that time Starter Peveto will send off the first foursome of the day. While one foursome is starting at No. One another foursome will be teeing off on No. 5. This will permit two teams going out at one time and it is predicted the 18 holes will be played in quick time and no player will have to wait.

Losers Treat Winners

The losers of the match Sunday will have to treat the winners to a banquet Thursday night at 6:30 at the Plaza hotel. In order that everything can be arranged in advance each player is requested to pay the official scorer $2 at the golf grounds Sunday. After the match the winners will be given their money back and the losers' cash held to pay for the banquet Thursday night.

If for any reason any player listed below cannot be on hand Sunday he is asked to definitely inform his respective captain at once in order that a substitute can be picked to play in his foursome.

Make your arrangements now. Tell the wife you just "gotta be there" and then BE THERE.

The teams and foursomes as picked Sunday follows:

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON
NO. 14—WHAT HAPPENED ON MARS.

Who's there?" asked the old man, sticking his head out of a window in the stone wall beside the gate.

The Twins held tight to Snoodle on the night-mare's back.

Snoodle was the oldest son of the Dream Maker Man and he was searching for Tweekanose who had stolen the sleepy sand from the Sand Man.

"Giddap!" said Snoodle, and the white night-mare went club-a-lub, club-a-lub, club-a-lub along the Milky Way straight toward Mars.

And pretty soon they got there and knocked at the gate. Rat-a-tat-tat! Rat-a-tat-tat!

"Who's there?" asked an old man with a green beard and blue hair and a nose like a cucumber, full of bumps and ridges and very, very long. He was first cousin to the Moon Man, but nobody would have known it, he being so queer 'n all. But then all the people of Mars were queer and no two were alike.

"Who's there?" asked the old man sticking his head out of a window in the stone wall beside the gate.

"Us," said Nancy. "Did Tweekanose the gnome come here with a sack of sand?"

"Nem," said the old man.

"That's what I said," declared Nancy impatiently. "He's a gnome and he's a rascal, too. Did you see him?"

"Nem," said the queer old fellow again with a shake of his head. "Lestways I didn't see him. But then I've been asleep. On Mars everybody sleeps while he works and all the guards sleep while on duty. As I am on duty 91 hours every day I sleep most of the time. If he was a good climber he could get over the wall and I wouldn't see him. He may be on Mars, and then again he may not be on Mars, and if he is on Mars I—"

"My goodness! What a wordy old fellow!" said Nick to Snoodle. "I'll fix him." So he said "Iminy Jiminy!" just like that and the door in the wall swung open and the night-mare clattered through, before the astonished cousin of the Moon Man got half way through with his pompous speech.

It was getting dark on Mars and all the people in all the houses were blowing out their lights. Because on Mars things are just the opposite of what they are on our planet.

"That's as it should be," said Snoodle. "Did always taught us to work in the dark. I've got eyes like a cat so I can see finely. There's a barrel over there. Let's peep in. Perhaps Tweekanose is inside."

So they went over and looked inside the barrel.

But it was only full of diamonds, nothing else, as all the people dumped their jewels out on the street in the evening and took the ashes inside.

All because nothing was the same on Mars.

Next they looked into an old tumble-down house for the bad little gnome.

But alas! It was only full of furniture as the people had moved out. Nothing at all was the same on Mars.

They looked everywhere and finally Snoodle said, "We must go back to the Moon. He's not here."

CHILD'S STORY OF THE HUMAN RACE

By Uncle RAY

HENRY THE EIGHTH AND HIS TIMES

Part V.—The King's Later Life

After Henry became ruler of the English church, he made an archbishop out of a man named Thomas Crammer. He told the new archbishop to be judge at a second divorce trial.

Queen Catharine again refused to answer questions at the trial. Crammer did not try to give her justice, he simply followed the king's will. A divorce was granted.

Henry was now free to marry again. It did not take him long to get more money for himself.

One of the next acts of Henry's was to shut up some of the smaller monasteries. He said that this was done because the monks did not lead good lives. The real reason, however, is widely believed to have been that Henry wanted more money. The rich farms of the monasteries brought in a good income and the king gained it for himself. Later on, he also shut up the larger houses of monks.

It would be too much to go into the history of the rest of Henry's lives. All told, he had six. One after another, they became tiresome to him. Two he divorced, two he put to death, one died before she was married long, and the sixth lived until after she had died.

I think there is no man living who will say that King Henry was fair to the women he married. He stands as an example of a man cruel to those weaker than himself.

It is said that Henry once proposed to an Italian lady.

"Thank you," she replied, "but I am sorry I cannot accept. I have only one neck and I do not care to risk that by being your wife."

The king's sixth wife treated him very thoughtfully. He was now old, sick and very stout. The care of a tender woman must have eased his final years. Some persons might say it was more than he deserved.

The most important thing about Henry's reign is this: It took English church from the control of the pope.

Thomas Crammer, the archbishop who gave King Henry his first divorce.

wed Anne Boleyn. The chief result of this marriage was the birth of a daughter named Elizabeth. This child was destined to make a longremembered name in history. She became the famous "Queen Bess."

FOREIGN POLICY
BASED ON FEAR

Is Football of Partisan Politics Says Davis

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—More confident than ever that he will be victorious at the polls in November, John W. Davis returned from his three-day speaking trip through New York today to prepare for a new invasion of the west.

The democratic candidate planned to spend the day in conference here and will leave tomorrow for a swing that will carry him through Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky and Ohio, according to the present tentative schedule.

Davis concentrated his attack on the administration's foreign policy in his speech at Buffalo last night, describing it as based on fear of the irreconcilable group in the senate rather than an attempt at constructive statesmanship.

American foreign policy, as directed by Hughes, Davis said, has been "made the football of partisan politics," and has been based on a policy of "peace at any price with the little group of irreconcilable republicans."

The situation, the candidate charged, has resulted in "tip top diplomacy" for the United States.

4,710 STUDENTS BUSY
AT TEXAS UNIVERSITY

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 9.—With all courses under way and with no additional registrations permitted for the fall term, enrollment records at the University of Texas show a total of 4,710 students, or an increase of 415 over the enrollment for the fall term of 1923.

Registrations after the Christmas holidays are expected to bring the total of students to 5,000, or a record for the university.

Two holidays will be given during the fall term, the first on Armistice day, November 11, and the second on Thanksgiving day, November 27. Final examination for the fall term will be held December 16-22, and the Christmas vacation will begin officially December 23.

OCTOBER PEAK MONTH
FOR COTTON SHIPMENT

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 9.—October will be the peak month in the movement of cotton from the port of Houston to foreign ports, according to C. B. Fox, general manager of the S. S. Gitovich Shipping company.

October will also give Houston a record month in cotton shipments, according to Fox, who estimates that 25 per cent more cotton will be exported from Houston during the current month than for any other month in the history of the port.

SLEUTHS DISCOVER
100 POUNDS DYNAMITE

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 9.—"There is a time and place for everything," decided City Detectives Andrews and Peyton when they discovered two boxes containing 100 pounds of dynamite on the banks of Buffalo bayou.

"But this is neither the time nor the place for detective work," they agreed and hastily put distance between themselves and the explosive.

No one would claim the unwanted property and it was finally presented to a construction company.

FT. WORTH COW PUT END TO THEIR TRIP

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Oct. 9.—The army world flyers had many novel experiences, but two aviators from Brooks field ran across something else.

Lieutenant Winsett and Sergeant Harwell sailed to Ft. Worth recently, planning to return before night.

A few hours after dark the following message was received by Brooks field officials:

"Cow ate fabric off wings of plane. Detained making repairs. Back in morning."

Let's All Go Crazy!
Here's How to Solve a Crossword

Crossword puzzle solving is the latest fad. If you have ever solved puzzles, you like crosswords. If you've never solved puzzles, you'll like crosswords.

It's a game that's educational, yet it can be enjoyed by the first-grader as well as the erudite professor. Once you've started, it's hard to stop. The puzzles are fascinating and challenging.

Here's how they are solved:

Each white square is to be filled in with a letter. When filled out, the letters form words that can be read either vertically or horizontally.

To find out what the letters are, first find the words.

Each word is defined. The numbers indicate where the first letter falls. You can determine the number of letters in each word by the number of squares from the first letter to the next black square to the right or below, or to the edge of the puzzle. Each letter occupies one square.

Try the first puzzle, printed herewith. Starting at the upper left corner, you will note that there are three white squares on the horizontal line. The definition for 1 (the number in the square where the first letter will fall) horizontal, is: "Whence a golfer lams the pill." Little or no thought suggests "tee." Correct! There are three white squares in the vertical line. The definition for 1 vertical is "One more than nine." Easy, when you know that it must begin with "T" and that it has three letters! Ten! Of course!

Now try 10 horizontal. When you have that, it will help give you the first two letters of 2 vertical.

Do not be discouraged if you can't solve the problem from beginning to end. Skip around, and then go back. Remember that each horizontal word solved will give you a few letters for your vertical words. And each vertical word solved will give you letters for your horizontal words.

Now try 10 horizontal. When you have that, it will help give you the first two letters of 2 vertical.

Do not be discouraged if you can't solve the problem from beginning to end. Skip around, and then go back. Remember that each horizontal word solved will give you a few letters for your vertical words. And each vertical word solved will give you letters for your horizontal words.

Now try 10 horizontal. When you have that, it will help give you the first two letters of 2 vertical.

Rush of Vessels in Canal
Unabated

Loaded out with case oil at the Texas Company terminals, the Dutch steamship Tenbergen will sail from Port Arthur late today or early Friday for South Africa, going direct from this port. Also sailing from the Texas Company today were the tankers Chester Sun, for Philadelphia; and the Occidental, for the Panama Canal Zone.

The rush of vessels in and out of Neches and Sabine river terminals continued practically unabated today, and the end of the unusually large movement of ships following the clearing of the wrecked Italian motorship Isonzo out of the channel and re-opening of the canal to traffic early Tuesday is not expected before the end of the week, shipping men here said today.

BRYAN ATTACKS
GOP CORRUPTION

Pleads for Election of Demo Ticket

SHAWNEE, Okla., Oct. 9.—Attacking republican corruption in office, Charles W. Bryan, democratic vice presidential candidate, urged election of his running mate, John W. Davis, to restore honesty in government, in a speech here last night.

Bryan pleaded for election of a democratic congress to bring success to a democratic administration, but carefully evaded mention of former Governor Jack Walton, democratic candidate for United States senator from Oklahoma.

Bryan was accompanied here from El Reno, Okla., where he spoke yesterday afternoon, by Governor E. M. Trapp. Bryan will speak at Enid this afternoon and complete his two-day tour of Oklahoma with a speech tonight at Alva. He is scheduled to talk at Clovis, N. M., tomorrow.

As Mild
as Morning Dew!

"Impossible!" you may say, but a test will prove it a fact. A new mild and non-sickening calomel has been perfected—one that men, women and children can take with the greatest of safety. It is free from impurities that cause salivation free from cramping griping drastic effects. Free from all unpleasantness. It works on a new principle. The purest English calomel is combined with pepsin. The pepsin dissolves slowly and allows the calomel to be absorbed into the system without forming a strong calomel solution. That is why it cannot sicken. From your druggist. Prepared by the Pepsinated Calomel Co., Atlanta, Ga.
